Specie

. The dove you will shoot is known as eared dove, a similar bird to the mourning dove that habit in US. This bird has a dark patch of feather on the side of the bird's upper cheek that looks like an ear, and that explain his name. This bird's hatch in between 3 to 5 times a year depending on the food.

Season

. 12 months a year - All year round

THE FIELDS

In the Northern Cordoba you will find out that 70% of the time we shoot in the hills. It is a very dry area with rocks and short hills, full of mid high bushes with thorns that make the terrain tough but not impossible. The 30% per cent of the times we shoot fields with crops or natural grass very easy to stalk.

The birds normally leave the roosting area with the first light of the day. They fly average 40 to 60 miles for food. The fields shooting options, depending time of the year, are:

- 1) Shooting the flyways: that means a point in between roosting area and feeding field.
- 2) the fields: harvest crops, like soy bean, corn, or sorghum (specially march to may).
- 3) feed lots: Birds concentrate for crops in big feed lots, and are great shooting options some times of the year (march to july).
- 4) Water holes: Especially in summer time are great shooting options (October to april).
- 5) Roosting areas: when the birds leave the main roosting area and stay in momentary roosting fields, we have the option to shoot them there with out affecting their main roosting place. During the hatching time you will see them flying both directions.
